

March 2020

COVID-19 Message to Prospective Families: We're Here to Help You Get to Know Us

Dear Families,

The independent school admission process is so personal, so reliant on time together – and at Prairie, we are finding ways to adapt and redefine what interaction currently means when it comes to falling in love with the school we hope you'll call home.

In this time when we must distance ourselves physically, we have a new opportunity to connect with you and your family. We are excited about the future – about the doors opening for the 2020-2021 school year – and we want you to be part of that conversation. We encourage you to learn more about Prairie through our campus videos, connect with our team via email, schedule a Google Meet or Zoom video call, or even pick up the phone; we may be working from home, but we're happy to talk to you about what makes Prairie such an incredible community.

As we continue to navigate through this experience, we will update this page with any changes or alternatives to the admission process. We would also like this page to be a resource for you and your family: which websites are Prairie teachers recommending for at-home ideas and instruction? What do our classrooms look like in a virtual setting?

Prairie faculty, students, and families are in this together, writing the newest chapter in our history – and we can't wait for you to be part of our story, too.

Sincerely,

Molly and Callie